Ashley Sullivan Roberts, Co-Founder/Executive Director, The Dyslexia Initiative, Texas, United States. She is also a Director at Large at the Houston Branch of the International Dyslexia Association.

Ashley is a wife, a mother and a parent advocate. Her only child was diagnosed with dyslexia and dysgraphia at the age of 7 and it was then that she embraced the dyslexia journey for all it was worth. She knows that her child needs her to stand up for him and be his voice, he needs her to make sure she fights for his legal right to FAPE, and, at all costs, he needs her to protect his right to be learning different yet be himself and thrive so he can be all he can possibly imagine himself to be.

In beginning her fight for her child, Ashley felt terribly alone and did not want anyone else to feel the same way. She also felt compelled to pay it forward, meaning, as she learned new things, developed skills, made connections, etc., that she wanted to share that information with others. It is those desires that has brought her full circle to being a founding member for The Dyslexia Initiative.

Ashley also hosts her own blog, “A Mom’s Journey – My Dyslexic Life” which may be found at: www.amomsjourney-mydyslexiclife.com as well as on Facebook, where she chronicles her journey through school and life, advocating for her child. She spends most of her time strategizing, working, planning, etc., for not just her son, but all dyslexic children.
