

Edidiong Idang started her career in the House Committee on Women Affairs of the Nigerian National Assembly, with a commitment to support the development of women and girls through effective legislations, education and capacity strengthening. Over the years, Edidiong has worked for Foreign Government Institutions, local and International NGOs; covering various thematic areas such as Education, Good governance, Disability and Gender Inclusion, Peace and conflict resolution. As a development expert with over 12 years experience, Didi as she is called has coordinated projects funded by the European Union, the Foreign and Commonwealth Development Office (FCDO) and others.

In 2012, Didi founded the Initiative for Peace and Women's right in Africa, a non-governmental organization whose thematic areas of intervention include: girl child education, Women in peacebuilding and Women in politics. This organization thrives through individual goodwill and peer-to-peer learning. As a certified self-discovery coach, Didi uses her skills to help young girls and women discover themselves and grow above their limitations. She is the author of two self-motivational books, currently on Amazon called – "The waiting room- maximizing the time" and "Love is a Craft- Discovering self for better relationships". She is the host of a Chumcast series called 'My mentor' streaming on Spotify.

Didi will be moderating the conversation on Day 1 of the Global Inclusive Summer Camp 2021.
